LINE UP BEHIND
F. D. R.'S PROGRAM

Legislators Expect Out-
line of His Proposals
Friday

BY D. HAROLD OLIVER.
Associated Press Staff Writer
WASHINGTON, Dec. 31.—With explosive issues in the offing, the opening year found the Democratic leadership laboring today to weld
its huge majority into a unit to put the Roosevelt administration's program smoothly through the 74th
congress opening Thursday.

Surveying a membership that ranges from share-the-wealth men
on the "left" to pillars of old-line
conservatism on the "right," leaders acknowledged that controversies are in store. But they said they found a consensus among many returning members that the last election was a mandate to follow President Roosevelt's lead.

Await President's Program
The president's program—embracing a vast range of problems
topped by relief of unemployed—has yet to be revealed in any detail. Legislators expect him to give an outline of principles and aims in a message which he will deliver on Friday, probably in person.

On Saturday, with the delivery
of the president's budget message,
will come the answer to one paramount question: how much will be spent for public works? Speculation has ranged from $1,500,000,000
to $7,000,000,000 but no one has given any authoritative statement.

From Rep. Byrns (D. Tenn.)
stated to be the speaker of the house, there came today a prediction that although debate may be "extended and widespread" on some issues, in the end the Democrats
will "work together."

Placing relief at the top of all
problems, he said the federal government had acted wisely in taking the lead in the attack on it. Now,
he added, business is improving
and it will be necessary also to determine whether and how to taper
off the federal government's activities.

G. O. P. Ranks Thinner
The Republicans, weaker numerically in congress than at any time
in years, are in no position to win
out-and-out party fights. They say their role will be one of constructive criticism.

Rep. Snell (R. N. Y.) regarded as the probable choice for Republican leader in the house, said his party's function was to put each proposal
to a test of merit, pure and simple.

Calling for a three-way plan of
job insurance, with employer,
employee and state government taking part, he also said "we must guard against plans for unlimited
currency inflation" and "further
tinkering" with money.

President Roosevelt secluded himself for the third successive day to glue together what he calls the scraps of his message. The Democratic steering and policy committees of the senate planned to meet

Hauptmann on Trial for Murder and Kidnaping of Lindy Baby

The specter of a baby's tragic death looms over the Hunterdon county courthouse at Flemington, N. J., where Bruno Richard Hauptmann, Bronx, N. Y., carpenter, goes on trial for the kidnaping and murder of the infant son of Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh.

CROWDS GATHER
AT COURT HOUSE

Re-dedication Exercises
Under Way; 350 At Dinner

Visitors from Columbiana and surrounding counties thronged the reconstructed, Lisbon, court house
today to attend the rededication
rites for which Carl V. Weyandt, chief justice of the Ohio Supreme court, will be principal speaker this afternoon.

The court house was put in the pink of condition as workers labored Saturday and early Sunday
adding the finishing touches to various parts of the building. Barkets of flowers have been placed in all offices. Brasswork was shined
and woodwork polished.

Musie was being provided by the Fairmount Home Children's band
of Alliance under the direction of
S. G. Gilbert. An information desk
was set up in the lobby entrance.

County offices were opened today
but little business was being transacted. Several tax inquiries
were made and some payments
completed. Additional applications
for vendor's licenses were received at the auditor's office.

Three hundred and fifty reservations were on file when dinner was served at noon in the Presbyterian church. An organ recital featuring Homer Taylor, of Salem, was heard.

Judge H. W. Hammond of probate
court was chairman of the day.
Judge W. F. Lones of Wells-
ville and J. C. Boone of Salem,
former probate judge, were unable to attend the ceremonies because of illness. The court house will be closed tomorrow, a legal holiday.

been given the roles of policemen.
Oscar Hively will be seen as a
"Bolshevik candidate" and Mrs.
Hively as Beulah Higginbottom,
president of the Women's Working Men. Miss Phoebe Ellen Parsons
will act the part of Julia.

Tonight's Limit

The expiration deadline on 1934
automobile license plates is at midnight tonight. Chief of Police Ralph
N. Stoffer warned today. No extension of time in which the old plates
may be used has been made, he reported.

Those found using 1934 automobile licenses on Jan. 1 will be prosecuted, Stoffer said.

17 Workmen Drown

LISBON, Portugal, Dec. 31.—Dispatches from Alcaer said today 17
workmen were drowned when a small boat was caught in a river
whirlpool and capsized. Only one man reached shore.

Escapes From Michigan Fire,
Runs Into Another In Lisbon

Hotel Fires Becoming Monotonous To Detroit Man
Who Flees Flames At Hostetter House

The next thing Albert Miller, of Detroit, knows, someone is going to make him an honorary member of the nation's fire departments.

Miller, a salesman, was in the Hostetter hotel at Lisbon Sunday
when fire broke out at 3 a. m. and caused damage estimated at $5,000.
Earlier in December Miller escaped
unscathed from the disastrous
hotel fire at Lansing, Mich., where he occupied a room at that time.

Miller's nostrils, now keyed like those of a veteran fire fighter to
the smell of smoke, quickly sensed danger early Sunday morning and was one of the first to take advantage of the nearest hotel exit.

In fact, Miller was in such a hurry
that he ripped off a swinging door

on his way out. "Two hotel fires
are enough," he exclaimed.

He left Lisbon this morning to seek refuge in the Hostetter house,
East Lincoln Way, when the blaze
was discovered by Irvin J. Vordran,
of East Liverpool, a bookkeeper in the county auditor's office, who had been working over-
time at the court house.

Members of the Lisbon fire department soon had the blaze under control. The fire, starting in the basement, ate its way up into the kitchen. Defective wiring was determined as the cause. Smoke and water added to the damage.

The hotel, one of the oldest in Columbiana county, a three story
structure, is operated by Mr. and Mrs. D. C. McCreery. The incident
marked the second large fire in Lisbon within the last two weeks.
The Lisbon Milling Co. suffered a $28,000 loss when fire razed a warehouse and two barns on Dec. 18.

Automobile Hater
Goes to Grave Via
Horse and Buggy

(By Associated Press)
GUTHRIE CENTER, Ia., Dec.
31.—In life John Motz hated automobiles with a defiant contempt.

Today, in death, the victim of injuries in his third violent encounter
with the loathed motor cars, preparations were being made to carry out his dying wish—he will be borne to his grave in a horse-drawn hearse.

The same rubber-tired funeral
carriage that Motz discovered three years ago at a livery stable at Bayard, 20 miles north of here, to avoid the use of automobiles at
the funeral of his wife, will be used
at the 82-year-old retired merchant's rites today.

At his death-bed request relatives also scouted the country-side
for a coal-black team to draw the hearse and found them.

Carriage horses and even work
teams have been engaged to draw
the assortment of buggies and carriages resurrected from dusty stalls.

Mingo Junction Hit
By Dangerous Fire

STUBENVILLE, Dec. 31.—Loss
estimated at $10,000 was caused
by fire which threatened the business section of nearby Mingo Junction.

The Stubenville fire department
helped extinguish the flames, which routed the families of Talmadge
Scott and Gus Lohman, who owned
the building. The Whitaker meat market and Myers' barber shop had quarters in the structure.

The Salvation army, through its local officers in charge, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Bowhall, today thanked the public for donations given during the Christmas season.

A Christmas program will be presented by the army New Year's evening, Jan. 1, at 7:30 p. m. The band from Alliance will present a program. The army also started a 10-day revival service Sunday.

10 OHIOANS SHOT,
TRAFFIC TOLL 5

Boy, 4, Accidentally Slain;
Wife Kills Husband
Who Beat Her

(By Associated Press)
Death or serious injury was dealt
to 10 Ohioans—four yesterday and six today—when they were in automobile mishaps.

Two accidents, involving guns,
caused the death of a four-year
old boy, near Hamilton, O., and the serious wounding of two sisters at the hands of their brother, Donald Dunham, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs.
Frank Dunham, of Wood's station,
near Hamilton, was killed when his brother, Kenneth Eugene, 5, playing "hold-up," commanded him to raise his hands, and accidentally discharged a rifle, according to Coroner Edward E. Cook.

May Edith Linville, 17, and her sister, Mildred, 19, of Mount Olivet, Ky., are in a Cincinnati hospital,
after a shot accidentally fired by their brother, pierced the neck of the younger one, and lodged near
the heart of the elder girl.

Cleveland police sought a man
suspected of shooting and killing Mrs. Edith Bennett Hooker, 34, and critically wounding her companion,
Albert Christensen, 51.

At Cleveland also, a youth who gave his name as Thomas Patterson, 24, Lancaster, Pa., was shot
and critically wounded, police said,
by David Blumenthal, a special
officer who assertedly found Patterson attempting to rob a store.

Coshocton authorities were investigating the death of Fred Goss,
who, according to Prosecutor Russell Lyons, was shot and killed as he lay in a drunken stupor, after beating his sick wife.

Lyons said the wife, Ruth, 37,
told him she waited until her husband fell asleep, then took his pistol and fired a shot into his head.

No charge will be filed against
Mrs. Goss.

Shot five times in a fight over a 10 cent dice game, Charles Hawkins, 49, negro, died at Mansfield,
Albert Walker, 38, another negro,
was charged with first degree murder.

A freight train, crashing into an auto carrying a family home from church, killed Thomas Vaughan, 44,
dairy farmer, and his fifteen-year-
old son, Owen, at a crossing south
of Brecksville and seriously injured his wife.

A milk truck driver, Joseph Tomasek, 35, of Parma, a Cleveland
suburb, was killed in a collision between his truck and an automobile.
His death raised the Cleveland
traffic toll to 237 compared with 213 last year.

When his oil truck ran off the pavement and upset near Hamilton, William Laman, 34, of Cincinnati, was critically injured last night.

Late Saturday, a woman identified as Miss Margaret Puls, 51, was instantly killed when she was hit
by an automobile in Cincinnati.
Her death raised the Cleveland
traffic toll to 237 compared with 213 last year.

F. D. R. ACTS TO AVERT PAYMENT
OF VETS' CASH

Makes Public A Letter
Expressing Opposition to Bonus

ASSERTS IT'S NOT
DUE UNTIL 1945

Too Costly, He Says, and Wouldn't Stimulate Business

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Dec. 31.—In an obvious effort to head off a strong congressional movement for immediate payment of the bonus,
President Roosevelt today made
public a letter expressing opposition.

The President contended the obligation was not due until 1945,
would prove very costly, and that
past experience had shown full
payment would not result in much
stimulus to business.

"Not Well Understood"
"The bonus question," he said
as congress prepared to convene Thursday, "is not well understood
even among the veterans themselves." He added that many "have not given the question sufficient
study to realize the vast sums required."

In money, he said, it would cost
$1,620,000,000 above the present
certificate value of $2,100,000,000
and $2,320,000,000 more than the original basic adjustment of $1, 400,000,000.

The President's views were expressed in a letter, dated December 27, to Commander Garland R.
Farmer, of the American Legion
post at Henderson, Texas, an area
whose congressional members almost invariably have supported
cash bonus demands.

At a press conference, Representative Byrns of Tennessee, who will be the next speaker, reiterated
his "personal opinion" that the bonus issue should be settled soon.

"He declined to commit himself on the proposals that have been advanced, but said he had 'heard
some talk of paying it by installments.'"

Sees No Reason For Delay
"When the session begins, there will be half a dozen or more propositions submitted," Byrns said.
"I would not suggest that proper committee consideration should not be given, but I see no reason to delay the thing until May."

"If the committee reports a bill,
I think it should be given a rule (legislative right-of-way) and be brought to a vote."

Some leaders on Capitol Hill
said they considered the President's action a serious obstacle to the bonus movement but others were quick to emphasize that Mr. Roosevelt did not close the door to all compromise.

Representative Fuller of Arkansas, Democratic member of the ways and means committee which doubtless will handle any bonus
legislation, said he was in favor of "disposing of the issue now," but said he was not sure yet just how
it should be done—in installment
payments or otherwise.

Winona M.E. Young
People To Present
Variety Program

The young people of the Methodist Episcopal church of Winona
will present a series of educational entertainments, beginning Jan. 4
and ending early in March.

The chautauqua is being sponsored by the Epworth League executive committee composed of Mary Andre, Camille Moore, Ellen Andre,
Merle Ewing, Gladys Edgerton,
Donald Cockpo, Kenneth Cockpo,
Vera Barber and Josephine Dunn.

The first program will be given Friday evening at the church in Winona by the Deluxe Melody Entertainers of Canton. Beautiful co-suetes will be used in the lovely vocal, instrumental and dramatic numbers.

Unique and clever impersonations and humorous readings will be features of the productions in addition to the musical numbers, by Wilma Vance Bingham. Her repertoire will be both humorous
and dramatic.

Dorothy Dyer Corner is an artist of rare charm on the piano-accordion and the musical saw. She will prove a special attraction to the young folks.

Edgar E. Vance, baritone soloist,
and his violin, will be a great addition to the ensemble numbers
of the program.

Both modern and old-time melodies, in special vocal and instrumental arrangements, will be presented.

With Mercury 30 Degrees Below

(By Associated Press)
MOREHOUSEVILLE, N. Y., Dec.
31.—Three of the four men stranded
for three days with a wrecked
plane in the Adirondacks eight miles from here were walking in this direction with their rescuers
today, while the fourth waited at the scene of the wreck with a wrenched hip, the state conservation department announced today.

Reached at 10 o'clock last night
by four woodsmen from Hoff-
meister, the cold and hungry men
realized they had been rescued
when ten men of the conservation
department arrived on the scene at dawn today.

By 11:30 a. m. the trip to Morehouseville had started, through
three feet of snow and at temperatures about 30 degrees below zero.

Hamilton Chequers, a foreman
of the CCC, who went in with the group returned early and told of the joy with which the survivors
of the hillside crash greeted their rescuers.

He said one of the men, either Ernest Dyer, the pilot, or his brother Dale, the co-pilot, had a wrenched hip and would be taken out later by sled. The others were expected to reach Morehouseville
at 2 p. m. Dyer's injury was only serious enough to prevent his walking.

GIFT AND GIVER, MODERN STYLE

Sometime before adjournment of the 74th congress there will be discussion of gift and estate taxes. The purpose, of course, will be to decide whether or not these taxes should be higher.

Gift tax rates automatically increase this year to a maximum level of 45 percent on amounts over 10 million dollars. The rates were authorized in the revenue act of 1934.

The gift tax allows an exemption of $50,000, like the federal estate tax. Past the exemption, which probably will be lowered by the next congress, there is no mrcy shown.

On $100,000, a tax of $13,200 is imposed. On $250,000, the tax is $37,200. On a million dollars, $136,200 is due. On five million, $1,267,450 must be paid. On 10 million, the tax is $3,312,450. Past that the government takes 45 percent.

This is confiscatory, of course. Yet, because so few persons are affected, there is no opposition, nor can there be any opposition. The new congress will boost estate and gift tax rates as a matter of course. Sen. Huey Long's proposal for confiscation of all estates in excess of a million dollars may prove to be the ultimate goal of congressmen.

Thus there is given to the nation one more sign of the decay of old precepts. No longer does man husband his material resources and add to them for the sake of his own estate. He can become, if he chooses, a generous provider for the state, which eventually will appropriate everything but his remains and a few personal trinkets at his death. But he cannot pass his savings on to posterity, either before or after death. The era of property is fading more rapidly than those people who still have property are able to realize. The incentive to accumulate is being killed at the roots by the crushing weight of inheritance taxes.

THE FUTURE IS ALWAYS BRIGHT

Who remembers what he meant by "Happy New Year" a year ago?

The meaning, with shades of difference, remains the same from year to year. It shows faith in the ultimate rightness of things. Fully phrased, the meaning is something like this: "I wish you and all mankind a Happy New Year and I believe you will have it." Formality has not driven out sincerity.

"Happy New Year" applies only to 52 weeks, but that, of course, is merely a calendaric limitation. It is a wish for all the future, repeated annually to accommodate the measurement of time.

This custom of measuring progress in terms of years probably is responsible for some avoidable disappointment. A year is only an instant in history. Yet, from the intensity with which each new year is viewed, it might be supposed that the world could be made or broken in 12 months.

In a longer view, each new year would open a new vista. By looking further, men would be less concerned with little obstacles at their feet. But it never will be that way. It need not be as long as the future always is bright.

It is, fortunately, and the brightness never fades. This is a nation of forward-marchers. Progress is taken for granted. Differences arise over method, mistakes are made, but a more glorious future continues to be the common goal.

The country's condition never has been so good it couldn't be improved and never so bad it discouraged attempts to improve it. Even in the worst years, things never seem quite so bad as statistics prove they must have been, because of faith in the inevitability of improvement.

It would be a drab existence without the Happy New Year attitude. Jan. 1 has been made an occasion for men to look up from their tasks, their sorrows and pleasures, to catch once more the vision of a greater destiny than they have experienced and to speak what is one of the surest signs that the world is ordered by some higher intelligence—

HAPPY NEW YEAR!

THE STARS SAY

For Tuesday, January 1

The year opens under rather comforting omens of progress and prosperity with many opportunities for increasing the fortunes, enhancing the popularity, gaining the attention and willing support of those in big business. Corporations and combines as well as secret bodies may be found ready to bend a listening ear to worth while propositions. However, there will be stubborn obstacles as well as sordid enemies to vanquish.

Those whose birthday it is may be joyous at the prospects of many substantial opportunities for stabilizing the fortunes, increasing their prestige and achieving the support and friendship of those in influence and authority. It will be a year of many fulfilled ambitions and worth while achievements although there may be the usual oppositions, obstacles and enemies to confront valiantly and successfully.

A child born on this day should be capable, ambitious and determined to win its place in the sun. Notable nativity: Paul Revere patriot.

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Dec. 31—Diary: Betsuma and talked to Bob Davis setting off on a trek through old Mexico and also chatting awhile with Dr. Abraham Rosenbach, the bibliographer. And on 57th street came upon Henry and Ann Bell and Zona Gale on the way to a broadcasting station and quite merry.

So home and rifling through my essay and with my wife shopping. And pounced upon a dark chocolate brown shirt with collar to match to my lady's disgust. This day I wrote a long letter to a venerable doctor back home about my fine impressions of Dr. Dafoe, the quintuplets medico. I met at Mary Dougherty's tea.

Dinner of a savory duck with wild rice at the Will H. Haynes and was helped thrice. Then to say farewell to H. T. Webster against hibernating in Florida until the salmon season opens in May, the lucky fellow. And a moment at a midnight buffet talking to James Melton, the radio singer.

Edison Marshall, the novelist, is off again, this time to a scrawny tag end of the world known as Manipur, an independent Himalayan state, for more material. In Paris enroute he was made a "Commander of the Dragon of Annam" by the French government. Last year he was a house guest of His Majesty in Annam. And the decoration was a compliment in honor of the visit. Marshall with this jaunt becomes America's most widely traveled author, next to that incurable wanderer, Bob Davis.

Verne Porter, soloing it in an authors' agency experiment, opens offices in likely the best known literary haven in America—The Algonquin. The Brevoort, on the lower avenue, is another rendezvous for authors, especially those from Europe. It is possible that every writing man in America who has visited New York has lunched at the Algonquin. It has become a sort of rite—like kissing the Blarney stone.

Charles Francis Coe, appalled at the thought of topping Herb Roth's "Dandruff on the Knob" and Corey Ford's "Stoney Broke," decided to go utterly bromidical in naming his estate at Bronxville. He actually calls it "Cozy Corner." Joe Cook has renamed his acres of insanity near Lake Hopatcong "Sleepless Hollow." Ben Ames Williams, who winters at Sea Island, Georgia, gave much thought to a name for his place and finally gave up, deciding it shall be nameless.

Personal nomination for the most decadent autobiography of the decade—that of H. G. Wells. But interesting just the same.

One of New York's most sedately sombre apartment houses is The Dakota on West 72d. Compared to modern architectural flub-dubbery, it is antiquated, out-moded. There is a gloomy inner court with fountain, a large side yard with underground tunnel of small shops and a venerable air. But the apartments suggest the width and depth of the Grand Central waiting room and have had no vacancies during the depression. Indeed there's a waiting list. While apartment eilat has swung across the park to the thin tall spires sentinelled against the East Side sky, the Dakota's tenants are of the elect. Each must not only furnish highest character reference but also financial and social.

After a verbal wrestle with a cop for being on the hither side of the white line, Emma Lindsay-Squier's taxi driver exploded: "These Eytallians talk about fatch-izm; they don't know nuthin'. Howzat for fatch-izm, the big bum!" And the photograph, of the outraged charioteer, believe it or not, bore the name—Julius Jupiter!

Bagatelles: Hunter College's Dean, Dr. Blanche Williams, is in England finishing a book on George Eliot. . . . Neal O'Hara, humorist, reads Ibsen and other gloomy volumes for diversion. . . . Frank Menke, sports writer, is a sucker for spic poetry. . . . Conrad Wawrzynski, of Florence, Col., is—and no wonder—known by his townsmen as Mr. Conrad. . . . Libby Holman likes to go on long hikes in the rain. . . . They are planning an O. Henry theatre for the Village.

Bill Halligan, jockeyed into an introduction with one of the town's glossiest gigoles, appraised him coldly then inquired brightly: "How's the hand kissing of silly old women business?"

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland
New York City

Cataract Is Serious If Neglected
Falling vision is a serious and alarming condition. It often occurs in an individual who is otherwise healthy. In such cases the disturbance is frequently traced to cataract.

Dr. Copeland

Cataract may be a symptom of old age or of some constitutional disorder, such as hardening of the arteries or diabetes. In some instances it is associated with an infection within the head, such as diseased and infected nasal sinuses, tonsils, teeth, or other structure.

Contrary to a common belief cataract is not confined to elderly individuals. When found in young persons it is usually in company with diabetes or chronic eczema. It is sometimes encountered in small children who suffer from malnutrition and underweight. These children are likely to have a hereditary weakness of the eyes.

A Progressive Disturbance
Cataract is due to a disturbance of the crystalline lens of the eye. Normally this is clear and transparent. As a result of some chemical change the lens becomes opaque and then the vision is obstructed. The change is usually progressive over a period of years. It may involve one or both eyes.

The victim first notices a dimness in the vision of the affected eye. At first he believes it is only a temporary blurring. Glasses are of little benefit. The sufferer soon discovers that he can read only large print and see objects only at close range.

Neglect of falling eyesight is dangerous because the disturbance may be due to some disease more serious than cataract. A physician should be consulted immediately upon discovering the slightest disturbance of vision. If due to cataract, examination will reveal a cloudiness behind the pupil.

Operation a Simple One

I am often asked whether cataract can be cured without an operation. Unfortunately, medicines are of little help in the relief of this affliction. Some are of value in hindering progress of the cataract, but restoration of sight can only be brought about by an operation.

In the hands of a competent eye surgeon, the operation is a simple one and need cause no alarm. When cataract is present in both eyes, it is customary to perform the operation on the more advanced one and operate later on the other eye.

Early recognition and prompt medical attention are essential for quick and complete recovery of falling sight, or this reason one should heed the first sign of any disturbance of the eyes. Guard and respect your eyes. They are precious organs.

Answers to Health Queries

A.—Have an examination to rule out the possibility of asthma. For further particulars send a self-addressed stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Ask Minimum Delay

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 31.—A "minimum of delay" should mark the start of collections of Ohio's new sales tax, the executive committee of the Ohio Education association declared in a resolution.

Speed is necessary, the resolution continued in order that estimated loss of $1,250,000 for each week's delay, may be "preserved for the schools and other political subdivisions of this state."

Urging the 91st general assembly to develop a permanent taxation program, the committee asserted a "sales tax must necessarily remain a part of any adequate program x x x under present conditions x x x" and in another resolution urged also "a tax upon that form of ability to pay represented by the personal incomes of our citizens."

CHAPTER XXXII

The nurse let Kay in to see Pete next day. She went into the hospital room timidly, expecting to see him looking deathly ill, but was pleasantly surprised to find that he seemed to be resting comfortably and that, except for the bandages which, with the white sheets, were startlingly white against his brown skin, he was just the same old Pete.

He grinned when he saw her. "Well, this for a picture?" he asked. At that, his voice did sound a bit. But the grin won and Kay turned it, confident that he was of danger.

"Not bad," she said. "You should be borrowed one of my negligees."

She sat down beside him. "Feel all right?" she asked.

"I've felt worse."

"You wouldn't fool me? It isn't anybody who bounces a bullet off your skull," she said.

"No, I'm all right. They just let me romp around. Little things, I'll admit."

"Pity, headache, she thought, she said. "Well—why keep it a secret? What happened to you?"

He looked at her curiously. "You don't know?" he asked.

"No. What?" she said anxiously. Pete grinned again and shrugged his shoulders.

"That's what eats me. I don't know. All I remember is I was riding up your drive when I heard somebody in the house."

"I did a dive and something went boom. Next thing I knew a nurse was leaning down at me. Everybody seemed to know something, except me. I'm only the one that got shot—or so they tell me. What did happen? Come on, take it."

"Pete—I'm not trying to be funny. I don't know what happened. Nobody seems to. I heard a shot and went running out and you were."

"You found me?"

She nodded.

"That must have been fun."

"It nearly scared me to death. I thought—"

"He reached for her hand. "Then I'd like to be a little?"

"Well, I don't want people shooting you," she said.

"Old Kay."

"The police are investigating," he said.

Pete's manner changed. He smiled. "They probably won't get it," he said.

"Why not?"

"Because they won't."

"Pete, do you think—"

"What else can I think?"

They looked at each other solemnly.

"But I can't believe it," she said. "I talked to him—"

"Suddenly, he checked himself before she started out the secret that Earl Harrow was having Pete's hospital bill. There was time enough to tell her that when he was up and well. It might upset him."

"And what?" he asked, a calm challenge in his voice.

"But Pete—it's silly to think it. Look at his position. After all—"

"He warned me to get out of town. I'd call that a threat."

"But Pete—he's a big man. Why, it's ridiculous when you stop to think of it. He has more to do than go around having people shot at because of a little pique. I could believe a lot of things about him, but not that. Don't you understand? Somebody has been trying to do something to him, those doctors he had the trouble with. Probably, and they've been hanging about my house. When you came back to town and were seen about, he naturally might have suspected you had something to do with it because you didn't like him. That's silly, too, of course—but I'm suspicious of everybody these days. And in a way, you can't blame him."

"No?" Pete said slowly.

Kay wished she knew what to say, what really to believe. It did seem inconceivable, though, that Harrow would have had Pete shot. He could have, yes, but he would not have."

The nurse cut their visit short. She was to rest, she explained. She left, no nearer a solution to the new mystery than she had been before. Once more she decided to confront Harrow. She went to the yacht and waited for him.

When he returned, Spike and Wagner were with him. Harrow motioned them on, seated her where they could talk, and smiled at her knowingly.

"There's something on your mind," he said.

"Of course."

"How's he coming?"

"He's in no danger, I guess."

"It looks as if he walked into somebody with a nervous trigger-finger," Harrow said. "You must believe me, Kay. I'm awfully sorry, really. Especially that it was Pete."

"Why Pete?"

"Because—he smiled ruefully—that complicates matters so. With me. I mean. They were bad enough before. You must hate me. I'll bet you think I'm all sorts of a Meekampholes?"

"I don't know what to think."

"I'm glad you're frank."

"Someone has to be."

Harrow gave a little sigh and shook his head despairingly.

"I'm no hard-boiled underworld king," he said. "I'm really a pretty law-abiding fellow."

"You're really a very strange person, though, you'll have to admit."

"The papers sometimes make me think so," he said. "I read about myself and know it's true, but when I look inside my own mind I am as simple as they come—too simple sometimes for my own good. I suppose you saw the little piece yesterday?"

"About the girl in France? Carotta Vestra?"

He nodded.

"Kay wondered what to say. Trying to be as tactful as possible, she said, "She must be a very remarkable person."

"She is," Harrow said seriously. "A very remarkable person."

He looked out toward the town, a mist of reminiscence in his eyes. "You were very fond of her once, weren't you?"

"Very," he said gravely.

"I'm sorry then."

"Are you?" He seemed to return to the present as he put his hand over hers and smiled.

She was sorry then that she had said it. This situation was becoming embarrassing. After all, why should she pity him, and, pitying him, why should she be so tactless as to let him see it?

"She's getting a Prince," he said, then let the remark remain suspended, unanswerable. There was a rather long pause, embarrassing to Kay, and he said, "It'll be fun—a Prince."

"She's really a great actress, isn't she?" Kay asked.

Harrow pursed his lips, his lean handsome face reflective, and for a moment he seemed to consider the question judiciously.

"I don't suppose she is," he admitted. "She's a great woman, a great personality. A great actress, though? I'm afraid not. But that will be our secret. Kay, ours and hers. She knows it, too. She's vivid, has a marvelous voice, fine presence, a good, keen mind. But she's more a personality than an actress. She's Carotta first and last."

"Is that her real name?" Kay asked.

"No," he said. "Maude O'Halloran."

"She's Irish?"

"You seem astonished. Yes—Irish and Italian."

"What a strange combination."

Harrow smiled, began to laugh a little. "I've often thought so. Irish and Italian. Her father was a painter. Never much of an artist, but a painter. Her mother was a singer. I expect that's where Carotta got her voice. She was born in Paris, in the Quarter."

Kay sighed. "What an interesting beginning! What a life she must have had!"

"You envy her," Harrow said.

"You needn't."

"? Why miss?"

"You've missed a lot of hardship already," he said. "Well," he repeated, rising, "she's getting a Prince Little Maudey."

Earl Harrow put his hands on Kay's shoulders, standing behind her chair.

"Sometimes I think you could go as far as Carotta," he said.

"And get a Prince?" she asked before she could stop to regret it.

"Yes, and get a Prince," Harrow said heavily. There was an awkward pause. "Kay," he said, "I wish you wouldn't think of me as—as whatever you have been thinking."

He leaned down and before she realized what had happened he had kissed lightly the back of her neck.

Another day went by and still the Commander did not leave on its southward cruise. Kay went to the hospital in the morning and found Pete looking very much his old self and apparently considerably improved in just twenty-four hours.

"I'm going to get out of here in a hurry," he said, "and then it's goodbye Daytona Beach. We'll be off for New Orleans and on down to Guatemala."

He saw the look of concern cross her face.

"Kay—you know—" but he stopped and stared beyond the foot of the bed.

"What, Pete?" What were you going to say?"

"Nothing."

"Must have been something."

"Just that I want you to make up your own mind and make it up pretty definitely before you go through with our little plan. I wouldn't have you be sorry for anything."

Kay knew at the moment that she should tell him her mind was by no means made up, that she was uncertain and perplexed about all the forces now tugging at her and wanted time and a clear insight before doing anything, but she felt that perhaps because of his condition this was not the best time to speak. Pete looked well; he looked cured; but even a slight concussion could upset the mental and nervous balance temporarily and a shock, a quarrel or anything of the sort might not be good for him. So what she said was:

"Pete, you're about as nice as they come."

That evening Harrow called for her and insisted she have dinner with him aboard the boat. He was at last ready to sail, he said, and would have few chances to see her for a long time.

It was a pleasant meal and a pleasant evening and Kay was more bewildered than ever as she sat on the deck chatting with Harrow and Spike, watching the moon rise over the eastern shore of the river. They could be two of the most considerate, most entertaining men she knew, and one in particular could be as attractive as any man she ever had seen. Yet she could not help thinking of all that had happened, and of Pete lying out in the hospital west of the city.

At about nine o'clock they heard a motor down by the dock and saw Ida Campbell's big Pierce come nosing up to a parking place.

"Well," Spike said, to no one in particular.

Harrow rose. "Excuse me," he said.

A man in a chauffeur's cap came aboard.

"Mr. Harrow?"

"Yes?"

"Mrs. Campbell would like to see you. Would you mind riding back with me?"

Spike and Harrow exchanged glances.

"She didn't have time to come for you herself," the man explained, "but she told me to tell you it was quite important that she see you tonight."

Spike chuckled softly to himself. Harrow did not hear him, but Kay did.

"I've a guest aboard," Harrow said, "and—well, let me see."

He turned to Kay. "Kay, would you excuse me for say half an hour. I've no idea what it's about, but Ida wants to see me. I know I shouldn't merely run off this way and—"

"It's perfectly all right," Kay said.

"I'll just be a moment then."

When Harrow had gone, Spike said, "That Campbell Jane gets in my hair. It's just like her to pull a stunt like this. I'll bet she even knew you were here."

Kay laughed easily. "Not that it could matter to me," she said. "But I do wonder why Ida didn't come herself."

Kay stopped so suddenly that Spike's mouth dropped open.

"What's the matter?" he demanded.

"Spike! I've a terribly silly idea. Maybe I'm losing my mind, but will you do something?"

"For you? Kill whom?"

"Call Ida's house at once and ask her—figure it out any way you can, but ask her if Mr. Harrow's there. Find out if she really sent for him."

Spike's broad, battered face seemed to widen and open with astonishment. He blinked his little candid eyes and began to scratch his head.

"Great suffering crocodiles," he muttered.

He jumped up and ran down the plank.

"Stick right where you are," he called over his shoulder.

He was back quickly from the nearest telephone and his face was grave.

"There wasn't even an answer," he said.

He ran inside and came out with Kelly, one of the two "mugs."

"I ought to have my head examined," he groaned, "letting him get out of my sight like that with nobody along."

"I never saw that chauffeur before," Kay said. "At first it didn't dawn on me and then I realized how strange it was that Ida didn't come herself."

Alabama and Stanford In Final Preparations For Rose Bowl Classic

Both School Coaches Agree That Victory In the Game Will Go To Team Capitalizing On The Breaks Afforded

BY PAUL ZIMMERMAN, Associated Press Sports Writer, PASADENA, Calif., Dec. 31—Coaches of the Alabama and Stanford football teams agreed today that victory in the Rose Bowl classic tomorrow will go to the eleven capitalizing on the breaks.

"I feel that the two squads are so closely matched," said Coach Frank Thomas of the Crimson Tide, "that the breaks will decide this game. Naturally I hope we get them."

Claude (Tiny) Thornhill boomed the same thought, but he enlarged upon it.

"The team that makes the breaks," said Towering Tiny, "and then takes advantage of them, should win. I say makes the breaks because that is just what a good football team does."

A capacity crowd of approximately 85,000 persons is expected. For the most part the coaches feel their teams will be at full strength. Thomas of the southern eleven, still is a bit dubious about Jim Angelich, first string halfback who has a weakened ankle.

Thornhill classifies the Stanford line as the greatest since he went to Palo Alto more than a decade ago. He hardly feels that the backs measure up to some of those of other fine Stanford teams but is satisfied they can take care of the situation tomorrow.

While Thornhill expressed the opinion that his injured stars, Bobby Grayson, Monk Moscrip, and Keith Topping would be ready to start, there was a question of how well they would weather the expected hard knocks.

While the odds on the game were quoted at 7 to 5 in favor of Alabama, little betting was being done except at even money.

Ideal weather was forecast. The opening kickoff is set for 5:15 eastern standard time.

Probable Starting Lineups:
Alabama	Stanford
Don Hutson	James Moscrip
Bill Lee (C)	Bob Reynolds
Charles Marr	Woodward Adams
Kay Francis	Westley Muller
Bob Morrow	Lawrence Roubie
James Whitley	Claude Callaway
Paul Bryant	Keith Topping

30,000 To Attend Sugar Bowl Tilt At New Orleans

(By Associated Press)

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 31—Tulane and Temple polished off their attacks today and marked time for the kickoff tomorrow in the inaugural Sugar Bowl football game.

Ted Cox planned to send the Green Wave through a light signal drill today while the "old fox," Pop Warner, put his stamp of approval on the Owls with a final "chalk talk" of last minute instructions.

Though each team is apparently to play in the Sugar Bowl (Tulane's stadium) minus the services of a regular guard, the squads are in excellent shape for their New Year's intersectional clash.

Both offensive stars are in great shape. The individual clash between these two backs is looked upon as the most attractive feature of the game. A crowd of 30,000 is indicated.

SALEM SAXONS TAKE ANOTHER

Victorious Over Cleveland Squad 45 To 25, On Saturday

The Salem Saxons invaded Cleveland Saturday night to battle the Cleveland West basketballers and after a lull first half found themselves and chalked up a 45 to 25 victory. After intermission the local Saxons had things much their own way and scored easily.

Detwiler set the pace for Salem on six field goals and two free throws. M. Linder and W. Linder each registered nine points. Gable drew Cleveland honors with five goals and one foul shot for 11 points.

Big 10 Flippers Start Shooting

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Dec. 31—The Cottons, Fishers, Laybournes, Normans, Blackmers and other marksmen of Western Conference basketball will start shooting at the Big Ten championship Saturday night, after cleaning up a lot of outside business during the week.

The championship campaign will open with three games, topped by the appearance at Madison, Wis., Purdue's defending champions against Wisconsin, Indiana and Illinois will open their drives at Champaign, and Ohio State tackles Iowa at Iowa City.

EAST AND WEST TEAMS READY

San Francisco Scene Of 10th Annual Charity Contest

(By Associated Press)

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 31—Another injury today weakened the squad of 22 college football players from beyond the Mississippi as they wound up training for the 10th annual East-West charity contest here tomorrow.

Doug Nott, Detroit backfield ace, limped from an ankle sprain, Saturday at the East's Berkeley camp.

The Detroit player joined "Pug" Lund, Minnesota half-back recovering from a severe cold, on the doubtful list. Duane Purvis, Purdue halfback has a torn knee tendon which is expected to keep him out of the game.

Andy Kerr and Dick Hanley eastern coaches, indicated they may use an air attack against the heavy western line, leaving the ground assault burden to Izzy Weinstein, line-smashing Pitt fullback.

The probable starting lineups:

West	Pos.	East	Pos.
Morse, Oregon	LE	Larson, Minn.	LE
Maddox, Kas. State	LT	Pacetti, Wisconsin	LT
Stacey, Okla.	LG	Hartwig, Pitt.	LG

COLUMBUS, Dec. 29—The State Relief commission today approved plans for the erection under FERA authority of a concrete stadium on the athletic field of Hayward Junior High school at Springfield, at an estimated cost of $13,908.

There's strong likelihood that Clark D. Shaughnessy, University of Chicago head coach, will be offered the job as successor to Eddie Casey at Harvard, although it is a fact Shaughnessy refused a chance to take the Ohio State job at a bigger salary last spring.

N.Y. Boxing Head Attacks Chiseling Fight Managers

BY EDWARD C. FOSTER, President, National Boxing Association

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 31.—Boxing certainly needs a major operation for 1935. In contrast with the record in all other major professional sports, especially baseball, football, and hockey, boxing continued on the downgrade last year from the standpoint of public interest as well as prestige.

We need a new deal in boxing, from top to bottom, weeding out the chiselers and poor fighters.

It's time to face the situation honestly and seek more remedies when it develops that a "world championship contest" was held in our largest city (Rosenbloom-Olin in New York) and only a little over 6,000 paid admission to see it.

Plays So-called Managers

Unquestionably, this deplorable condition today in boxing is due entirely to the present-day boxer and his so-called manager.

I honestly believe that 75 per cent of these so-called managers should be relegated to the position which they really should hold, namely, that of trainer or rubber for the boxer.

It is really unnecessary for the average young boxer to be burdened with a manager. It is the absolute duty of every state athletic commission, when a contest is arranged in their state, to see that everybody concerned is amply protected, and this certainly goes for the boxer.

The present day champions are certainly leaving themselves open to considerable criticism. Regarding the heavyweight division, I believe that the less said about this class, the better.

May Fight In Pittsburgh

Next we come to the light-heavyweight division, of which Bob Olin is the present champion. It remains to be seen whether Olin will be a real-fighting champion or turn himself into a sort of safety deposit box for the title.

In the middleweight division, Teddy Yarrs has certainly not shown much activity up to the present time, but I believe that a title match soon will be staged in Pittsburgh. The welterweight division has baby-faced Jimmy McLarnin as the champion, and if he follows the same procedure which he previously followed before meeting Barney Ross in New York last May, very little action can be expected in this class.

Long Beach, Calif., Dec. 31—Two score and more of golfers' best today headed into the finals of the $1,500 California open championship.

With favorites forging into the front, a new California open king was to be chosen before sundown out of 36-holes of medal play.

Yesterday's 36-hole qualifying round ended in a three-way tie between Sam Parks, Jr., Pittsburgh; Eddie Ross, Glencoe, Ill., and Vic Ghezzi, Deal N. J., who turned in scores of 142.

TWO GAMES ON FOR COLUMBIANA

Meet Louisville Here Friday; Salineville On Saturday

Special To The News

COLUMBIANA, Dec. 31—Coach Jimmy Wiand's Columbiana High school basketball team is gunning for their sixth and seventh victories during the coming weekend, and should secure them handsily unless over-confidence upsets the lads.

Louisville High will come here Friday night for a game while the red and white will journey to Salineville Saturday night for the bi-annual game in "the Ark."

Among the many players who were at the alumni game last Friday and who have been out of school for a number of years, Friday night included "Buck" Burke, Boardman High coach, "Boke" Hawkins, "Choc" Gaines, "Red" Benninghoff, Roger Beck, Albert Thoman, Perry Kyser, Jim Burrow, George Hart, and George Brungard. Other more recent graduates included: George Keller, Maurine Lehman, Jim Detwiler, Graydon Metz, Kenneth Troll, and "Bun" Zellers.

Tennessee is understood to have made some overtures to Lou Little to succeed Major R. R. Noland as football mentor at Knoxville, but Columbia Lou is well satisfied, right where he is.

Unquestionably, this deplorable condition today in boxing is due entirely to the present-day boxer and his so-called manager.

The present day champions are certainly leaving themselves open to considerable criticism. Regarding the heavyweight division, I believe that the less said about this class, the better.

May Fight In Pittsburgh

Next we come to the light-heavyweight division, of which Bob Olin is the present champion. It remains to be seen whether Olin will be a real-fighting champion or turn himself into a sort of safety deposit box for the title.

In the middleweight division, Teddy Yarrs has certainly not shown much activity up to the present time, but I believe that a title match soon will be staged in Pittsburgh. The welterweight division has baby-faced Jimmy McLarnin as the champion, and if he follows the same procedure which he previously followed before meeting Barney Ross in New York last May, very little action can be expected in this class.

Unquestionably, this deplorable condition today in boxing is due entirely to the present-day boxer and his so-called manager.

I honestly believe that 75 per cent of these so-called managers should be relegated to the position which they really should hold, namely, that of trainer or rubber for the boxer.

It is really unnecessary for the average young boxer to be burdened with a manager. It is the absolute duty of every state athletic commission, when a contest is arranged in their state, to see that everybody concerned is amply protected, and this certainly goes for the boxer.

Last year's Louisville game ended 44-18 with the locals on the short end. Last season's Salineville score was 28-11 in favor of Columbiana.

Among the many players who were at the alumni game last Friday and who have been out of school for a number of years, Friday night included "Buck" Burke, Boardman High coach, "Boke" Hawkins, "Choc" Gaines, "Red" Benninghoff, Roger Beck, Albert Thoman, Perry Kyser, Jim Burrow, George Hart, and George Brungard. Other more recent graduates included: George Keller, Maurine Lehman, Jim Detwiler, Graydon Metz, Kenneth Troll, and "Bun" Zellers.

Tennessee is understood to have made some overtures to Lou Little to succeed Major R. R. Noland as football mentor at Knoxville, but Columbia Lou is well satisfied, right where he is.

Alabama and Stanford In Final Preparations For Rose Bowl Classic

Both School Coaches Agree That Victory In the Game Will Go To Team Capitalizing On The Breaks Afforded

PASADENA, Calif., Dec. 31—Coaches of the Alabama and Stanford football teams agreed today that victory in the Rose Bowl classic tomorrow will go to the eleven capitalizing on the breaks.

"I feel that the two squads are so closely matched," said Coach Frank Thomas of the Crimson Tide, "that the breaks will decide this game. Naturally I hope we get them."

Claude (Tiny) Thornhill boomed the same thought, but he enlarged upon it.

"The team that makes the breaks," said Towering Tiny, "and then takes advantage of them, should win. I say makes the breaks because that is just what a good football team does."

A capacity crowd of approximately 55,000 persons is expected. For the most part the coaches feel their teams will be at full strength. Thomas of the southern eleven is a bit dubious about Jim Angelich, first string halfback who has a weakened ankle.

Thornhill classifies the Stanford line as the greatest since he went to Palo Alto more than a decade ago. He hardly feels that the backs measure up to some of those of other fine Stanford teams but is satisfied they can take care of the situation tomorrow.

While Thornhill expressed the opinion that his injured stars, Bobby Grayson, Monk Moscrip, and Keith Topping would be ready to start, there was a question of how well they would weather the expected hard knocks.

While the odds on the game were quoted at 7 to 5 in favor of Alabama, little betting was being done except at even money.

Ideal weather was forecast. The opening kickoff is set for 5:15 eastern standard time.

Probable Starting Lineups:
Alabama	Stanford
Don Hutson	James Moscrip
Bill Lee (C)	Bob Reynolds
Charles Marr	Woodward Adams
Kay Francis	Westley Muller
Bob Morrow	Lawrence Roubie
James Whitley	Claude Callaway
Paul Bryant	Keith Topping
Riley Smith	Frank Alustiza
Millard Howell	Elzo Van Dellen
Jim Angelich	Bob Hamilton
Joe Demjanovich	Bobby Grayson

SALEM SAXONS TAKE ANOTHER

Victorious Over Cleveland Squad 45 To 25, On Saturday

The Salem Saxons invaded Cleveland Saturday night to battle the Cleveland West basketballers and after a listless first half found themselves and chalked up a 45 to 25 victory. After intermission the local Saxons had things much their own way and scored easily.

Detwiler set the pace for Salem on six field goals and two free tosses. M. Linder and W. Linder each registered nine points. Gable drew Cleveland honors with five goals and one foul shot for 11 points.

San Francisco Scene Of 10th Annual Charity Contest

(By Associated Press)

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 31—Another injury today weakened the squad of 22 college football players from beyond the Mississippi as they wound up training for the 10th annual East-West charity contest here tomorrow.

Doug Nott, Detroit backfield ace, limped from an ankle sprain, Saturday at the East's Berkeley camp.

The Detroit player joined "Pug" Lund, Minnesota half-back recovering from a severe cold, on the doubtful list. Duane Purvis, Purdue halfback has a torn knee tendon which is expected to keep him out of the game.

Andy Kerr and Dick Hanley eastern coaches, indicated they may use an air attack against the heavy western line, leaving the ground assault burden to Izzy Weinstock, line-smashing Pitt fullback.

CONGRESS WILL OPEN THURSDAY

Work On Money Bills

As for the house, several state delegations prepared to caucus on the speakership and leadership nominations. The appropriations committee continued a fast pre-session pace, hoping to have three or four annual money bills ready for the floor by January 7.

Just now, the $2,500,000,000 soldiers' bonus issue looks like a headline. Though the president has made no official statement, high administration officials have shown no favor for immediate payment in full. So strong is the congressional support for such payment, however, that there has been much talk of possible compromise.

Leaders were watching closely also in an attempt to gauge the strength of drives for currency inflation.

Besides relief, public works and administration social security program which will include unemployment insurance and possibly old age pensions, many other topics are expected to be debated, among them:

Permanent NRA legislation, extension of the reconstruction corporation's life, changes in the agricultural adjustment and Bankhead cotton control act, more money for home owners' loans, taking the profit out of war, regulation of utility holding companies, the Lawrence seaway treaty and the world court.

A task of confronting the senate Democratic conference today was finding something for the senate to work on the first week or so while the house forges ahead with appropriations measures.

Members of the church are invited to a cottage prayer service Wednesday evening, Jan. 2, at the home of A. N. Davis, Newgard avenue. Mrs. Roy Clarke will be the leader.

Woman Believed In Lima Murder Quarry

LIMA, Dec. 31.—Police today prepared to drag the famous "murder quarry," in the belief that they might locate the body of Mrs. James Priezio, missing since last Monday.

The woman's hat, coat shoes and purse were found near the quarry and her husband, James Priezio, identified a photograph of her which was found with the clothing.

Police, however, said the quarry had been covered with ice for more than a week and expressed doubt that the woman had taken her life there. They resolved to wait until today, hoping she would return home, before exploring the pool.

In the same quarry the bodies of Earl Truesdale and Thelma Woods were found in 1931. The double slaying never was solved.

Joe Penner Heads All Star Cast In New Year's Eve Comedy Film

The New Year will be ushered in at the State theater tonight with plenty of laughter inspired by the picture, "College Rhythm."

"White Parade" will conclude its run this evening and the new picture, "College Rhythm," will begin at 11:45 for the midnight show.

It brings a splendid cast headed by the crown of radio who makes his debut in feature pictures—Joe Penner. Then there are Lanny Ross, golden voiced tenor, Jack Oakie, Helen Mack, Mary Brian, Lyda Roberti, George Barbier, Franklin Pangborn, Mary Wallace and Goo Goo, Penner's pet duck. In addition there is a glorious chorus of girls who dance and sing to melodies written by Gordon and Revel, including "Take A Number From One to Ten" and "Stay As Sweet As You Are."

Ross, Oakie Rivals

The story deals with the college rivalry of a piccolo player and an All-American halfback who love the same girl. When they graduate they carry the feud and their college ideas over to the department store business. The store is owned by Lanny Ross' father and the great football star (Oakie) is forced to ask for a job in the store. Oakie gets the bright idea of bringing college symbols into the business—a football game, cheers, songs and the like—and all goes well until their competitor, Joe Penner, crabs their style. The big game between the competing stores rivals together on one team, and to convince them they have been arguing all in vain for they do not love the same girl after all. Ross finds to his amazement and joy that he is in love with his father's quiet little stenographer.

It's a grand film with a goofy plot that takes no genius to guess its outcome and it has great songs, lovely girls, good dance numbers and plenty of genuine comedy with Penner at his very best.

"White Parade" Good Film

DURING the earlier hours this evening the State shows a splendid film entitled, "The White Parade" with Loretta Young, John Boles, perhaps because of the real sincerity in acting.

Miss Young does excellently the young student nurse who is heroine. The film follows her schooling from the days she rolled until she graduates and to make the choice between the man she loves, John Boles, and service whose true meaning become clearer to her every day the three years she has been in the hospital.

Boles is good as the rich man who is baffled by the sense of loyalty to her work so deep in the girl's heart. Dorothy Wain scores again as the tragic nurse who finds it so hard to give up her love for a young intern. Miss Kirkland and Miss Compas are outstanding in comedy and Jane Darwell is excellent as the big hearted "Sailor" who is so hard to make life in the hospital easier for the girls who make the "white parade."

We take this occasion that we may wish all our friends and patrons a very HAPPY NEW YEAR and thank them for their kindness toward us in the past.
